Narrative update:

- This month marks the beginning of my term. I've had the privilege of attending various events and meetings and meet both the TUSA team members and UTAS staff. I've also started engaging with students, addressing individual concerns. These efforts have helped me understand the needs and priorities of our student body.

Narrative update: January set the stage for a year of growth and connection. With campus quieter during the summer break, it was a time to lay the groundwork for initiatives and shape the months ahead.

Key activities and include events, engagements and meetings.

- Took part in the Student Living BBQ and Cricket Day, chatting with a couple of new HDR students and helping create a welcoming atmosphere.
- Picked up some TUSA-branded clothing and nametag during the handover process.

- Attended Food Hub Expansion Working Group Meeting and joined the working group
- Started exploring food sponsorship opportunities for campus events by reaching out to a local business—community outreach plans are in the works.
- Completed a Responding to Distress course ran by Jessie Armitage, which was a great chance to build skills for supporting students in tough moments.
- Introduced myself to campus security teams on both campuses, built some friendly connections, and got my TUSA access sorted out.
