Narrative update:

Only a short one from me this month! May and early June was peak exam season for our Rozelle students, with OSCEs, written exams, and viva voces spread amidst the two cohorts...congratulations to everyone! Most notably, this time marked the transition from semester one into semester two, which, for our second year students, meant that they are now in their second last trimester of their degrees - final push people! With the cold and rainy season rapidly encroaching, PaceMates TUSA will be taking a hiatus for this season, with the potential for another, more weather-friendly initiative to take its place. During the break, the College of Health and Medicine acquired some new equipment for both paramedicine and nursing students to improve class experience – great news for returning students! I hope all students had a great (and extremely well-deserved) break, and are excited for the upcoming semester

As always, if you have any suggestions, concerns, or questions – please don't hesitate to contact me at: rozelle.president@tusa.utas.edu.au
